

FIVE WAYS IDENTIFYING PATIENT CARE GAPS WILL BENEFIT YOUR SMALL MEDICAL PRACTICE

SAVING TIME

For patients, a faster timeline is also a benefit for early intervention and improved pain management. Instant access to organized data from the individual practice as well as other providers will help in more quickly confirming a diagnosis or developing an appropriate treatment plan.

BETTER PATIENT CARE

Patient engagement can be achieved when providers have better access to the entire spectrum of care a particular patient is experiencing. This allows the primary provider to note gaps, and more closely coordinate treatment plans with other providers.

IMPROVED POPULATION HEALTH

Making sure that each patient has at least one face-to-face appointment with a primary care provider each year is one undeniable way to close the patient care gap. Medical services can be provided before the patient's condition devolves into a critical and costly phase.

FASTER REIMBURSEMENTS

Using a digital program to gather and provide quality metrics makes it much easier to communicate with third party reimbursement entities such as CMS or insurance companies.

FINANCIAL GROWTH

By eliminating the patient care gap and improving the quality of care provided, a medical practice ensures that it provides the full range of available services to each patient. Providers will also be able to increase revenue by billing for additional services that were provided as being necessary to close care gaps.
